

Why are they again driving a different car?
How do they earn their money?
What do they do all day?
Why do they wear sunglasses?
Why does nobody ever visit them?
Those are already different people again.
One cannot have a conversation with them.
One never sees anyone at the window.
The curtains are always kept drawn.
Their lights are always on very late at night.
Why do they never leave their apartment?
They stay at home all day.
They don't have contact with anyone.
They pay their rent to the landlord in cash.
They hardly have any trash.
They don't ever put anything in the garbage cans.
That is yet again a different car.
Where do they get the money from?
They only arrive at night.
One never hears anything from their apartment.
They never clean their windows.
When I ring their bell, nobody ever opens.
They don't speak to anyone.
Nobody knows them.
They are surely terrorists.
The woman always has her hair in her face.
What sort of a license plate is that?
The hair looks like it has been dyed.
Sometimes one hears the banging of a typewriter.
Is he wearing a wig?
The man is thick-lipped.
Is that what artists look like?
There are never any lights burning there.
The mailbox is always full of advertisements.
They don't use their storage space.

Sometimes he comes with a different woman.

Yesterday I saw her with a different man.

They always avoid conversation.

They are that kind of hippie type.

They don't have any kids.

He looks like the man on the poster.

They hardly brought along any furniture.

They are not from around here.

What kind of a life do they live?

The car has been sitting here for a while.

I never saw a moving van.

The car was covered with mud.

Is that beard real?

I have never ever seen them on the balcony.

Before they turn on the light they always pull the curtains closed.

Their windows are closed even when it is really hot.

From time to time one hears footsteps.

They don't have any plants.

I sometimes see them making calls in the phone booth.

We listened in at their door.

Don't they ever go to work?

What do they live off of?

We didn't notice anything.

What do they do all day?

You tend to start developing some suspicions.

She is completely unremarkable.

He always looks away whenever one runs into him.

He always wears such weird things.

He arrived very late.

They are often away.

They don't seem to have any regular normal routine.

They are younger people.

They look like students.

Sure I would like to get the reward.

That could be a hiding place.
